EVENTS OF THE MONTH:

Slovak documentaries

Slovak documentaries, our focus for this week. A cinematography in the last months best known for Peter Kerekes's Velvet Terrorists, who will also present his new much awaited film at the International Film Festival Cinematik in Slovakia. This documentary competition presents the essentials of Slovak theatrical documentary distribution. We have gone through the history of their selection and made one of our own, leading to a presentation of 5 documentaries, which might ring the bell.

Focus on Anja Salomonowitz

The last feature film of Anja Salomonowitz Spanien started its festival trip at Berlinale Forum. But we have had Anja in our minds even earlier, following her previous predominantly documentary work such as Carmen, You Will Never Understand This, It Happened Just Before. Her name will fill the internet once again, now with her recent theatrical distribution of The 727 Days without Karamo. In our online event we would like to present and remind her previous films.

Film of the Week: Hamdan

After teaching young people how to use explosives, former Palestinian fighter Hamdan spent 15 years in prison. His account, in voiceover, carried along by powerfully evocative images, floats over deserted roads, dilapidated houses and silent faces. Interrupted by moving testimonies, he narrates the existential condition of a people, and the horror of a descent into hell. This film was presented at the Visions du Reel International Competition 2013.

Silent films from the XXth century

Two weeks with 10 short documentaries from the beginning of the 20th century. We have opened the National Film Archive and fished up a unique collection of films, mainly from the Prague's ambient in the years 1898-1919. Let's blow out the dust and discover the beauty of silent film and the old streets of Prague. This way we celebrate the 70th anniversary of the National Film Archive in Prague.
